Sealtite Honored Large Business of the Year

Sealtite Building Fasteners, was honored as Large Business of the Year. Tony Myers, vice president and COO of East Texas Medical Center, last year's recipient, presented the honor.

Sealtite, founded in 1992, makes and ships fasteners and other construction materials for the metal building and metal roofing industries.

"Despite a major slowdown in national construction activity, 2009 sales have grown 10 percent over 2008, and the company is poised to become the second-largest fastener manufacturer in the United States," Myers said of Sealtite. "Sealtite has been active in the Tyler community since its inception." Speaking to the crowd, Bruce Crouch, Sealtite vice president, compared his company's success the past year to what the chamber itself has accomplished in its banner year.

"It has been a really good year for us," Crouch said. "Tyler is a great place to ship from. We also enjoy the benefits of great business services here in Tyler."
